

Illustrator wanted!

Your artwork featured in our new card game?

We are looking for new talent to design the artwork for our next game! Has it always been your dream to design artwork for a card game, then this is your shot! The card game in question is relatively small, featuring 110 cards and five unique illustrations. To participate in this contest we are asking participants to design one of these unique illustrations.

What are we looking for?

Numbers will be fundamental to this card game. To make the cards more visually appealing we want to incorporate different worlds within these numbers. An example is this card featuring an underwater world. One background illustration will be placed in different numbers (1 to 7) from that "suit". Your interpretation of this world can be anything ranging from climate zones to a complete fantasy world. Rugged landscapes, animals, humans or robots, let your imagination run free and surprise us with a wonderful world that will fascinate our players.

Eventually we will need five different worlds, but for this contest we are asking you to illustrate just one. If we like your design best we will offer you a contract to design the other four worlds!

Inspiration

Featured elements:

We are looking for illustrations where we can have certain elements jump out of the frame. For example, the girl sitting in the C, the Zepplin in the 10 or the paddle in the summer illustration.

Layered artwork:

The artwork has to consist of separate layers. In this way we can use elements of the same illustration to fill the different numbers of that "suit". As an example, this F features multiple fish layers which we could relocate differently in each number.
